Commissioner Martin:

It seems to me the real issue at hand is the fact the public airwaves in this country are in the hands of the only monopolies allowed in business. Responsiveness to the needs of the citizenry is non existent but rather political and monetary agendas seem to be the only focus, as usually happens in monopoly situations. Isn't that why we said they should be illegal? I try not to watch much TV and certainly not violence nor go to movies of same so I would not let my children either. What about you? I do hope that you use your positions of authority and responsibility to doing something about this situation. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Jerry Flach

Commissioner Abernathy:

Dear FCC:

I am writing to complain about TV violence, sexual content and inappropriate commercials. It's so awful that I restrict my kids to watch mostly videos. This is a shame. And shame on YOU for allowing the junk on TV that is there.

Even if we carefully hunt down a wholesome show we have to turn it off during the commercials!! Sexual innuendos (that I have no desire to explain) are rampant. Even KY Jelly is advertising!! It's enough that tampons are advertised.....

What about the violence! I don't want my kids to be thinking violent thoughts, or to be seeing those images in their heads and so I don't want them to watch violence.

Shows such as Fox's "24" and CBS' "CSI" push the envelope of violent programming, while you, the FCC, look the other way.

I'm only 45, but I remember when my Mom put me in front of the TV. Violence was very mild, sex was not there or even alluded to and commercials were memorable not disgusting.

Do you even care about the crap our kids watch - or does it not matter to you any more. I thought you took this position to protect our TV viewing from this stuff.

Sincerely,

Joan & Hal Kraft

Please do something to curtail the violence our children are subjected to on a daily basis. They get it in the movies, on TV, and magazines. I don't want my family to be "brainwashed" with this garbage. Surely, there are still great minds out there who can come up with good family entertainment that would be wholesome for everyone. I am confident the change would promote better behavior in our youth and thereby promote a better society. I would encourage you to act on this issue as I feel the majority of the TV viewers are in agreement.

Commissioner Jonathan Adelstein

Washington, DC 20554

Commissioner Adelstein:

Dear FCC Commissioner,

Hello. My name is Walter Podejko. I am a stepfather of a ten year-old son, and I work hard at keeping him from offensive programming. That is a monumental task, considering that almost every cartoon has violence in every episode. Today, unlike in times and cartoons past, the way to stop criminal behavior, which is a good thing, is through violent action against the criminals involved. It is the "might makes right" attitude that makes me nervous for my son. I remember shows in the sixties and seventies that stopped crime by having characters use their brains and call in the authorities. Today, it is hard to tell the good guys from the bad guys, because the language is awful and hurtful and sometimes vulgar and offensive, and that is coming from the so-called good guys. We are still only talking about cartoons. Movies that are geared for the ten and older crowd are filled with sexually suggestive come-on statements and skimpy attire and flirtatious exchanges from the girls in movies, sitcoms and even cartoons. This is a heartwrenching situation for our family. We are Christians and we would like to allow our son to stay innocent and pure for as long as we can, but even the violence is a big negative factor. Yesterday, my son said some kids were picking on him, and he said to a few of them, "keep it up, and you'll see what happens to you". Needless to say, I challenged him not to speak like that, but to get an older person involved. He did, and the other boys ended up begging not to be kicked out of the camp by the leaders. They've left my son alone since he went to the people in charge. Violent behavior is everywhere in media, and it's making an impression on kids everywhere. Please try to put an end to violent programming for the sake of the future of American kids. They will thank you some day for it.

Sincerely,

Walter Podejko
